WELCOME TO E-PĀNUI

9 September 2020

Ki ngā tini mate o te wā, haere atu rā, moe mai rā. Ki a tātou ngā waihotanga, tēnā koutou, tēnā tātou.

Living and working in these Covid times is challenging to say the least. Things we were used to doing before Covid are no longer the norm, for the moment. As a rūnanga our primary focus has remained on the health and wellbeing of our whānau and hapū.

This week we bade farewell to Nekerangi Paul. Moe mai rā e te tungāne. It was a sad and heartbreakening occasion not only for the immediate whānau and friends, but also for the hapū. In accordance with the decisions made by the Marae Trustees, the marae was made available for the tangi, but the staffing and volunteer support we would normally wrap around our tangi was severely restricted to ensure we were meeting our Covid health and safety responsibilities. This proved to be exceedingly challenging for all involved and will require more kōrero between the Marae Trustees and the Executive, and, the paepae tāne and paepae wahine about how we carry out our tikanga in this new Covid world.

This Sunday we have our AGM – see the pānui on page 2. Our normal bi-monthly meeting will follow. Both meetings will take place on Zoom, please let us know if you would like to join us so we can send you the link.

For those whānau without zoom, we are willing to open the two offices. Please email to Taumutu@ngaitahu.iwi.nz by this afternoon if you want to take up this opportunity.

There's some interesting pānui and opportunities in this pānui. Please pass it onto the whānau incase there's a job or scholarship that might interest them.

Take care out there whānau.

Waiho mātou ki konei
Hai hopo, hai tangi
Haere atu rā ki te putahitanga o Rehua
Okioki mai rā

Ngāi Te Ruahikihiki ki Taumutu extends our heartfelt sympathy to the whānau of Nekenekeiterangi Paul, much loved husband of Tonia Martin and pāpā to his children Tawhiao, Mapihi and his mokopuna.

Nekenekeiterangi Paul, Ngāti Pikiao, Te Arawa, was a skilled and dedicated professional librarian best known for his sixteen-year career in the Macmillan Brown Library at the University of Canterbury and his time as a librarian in the Christchurch City Libraries. He was a well-known face to the visitors to the Ngā Pounamu Centre in the Central Library and over his time at the university provided generations of students, staff and researchers his invaluable mātauranga and insight into te ao Māori.

A kaitiaki for the Ngāi Tahu archive held at Macmillan Brown, Nekenekeiterangi was held in high esteem by all who had the good fortune to ask for his assistance or advice when carrying out research on kaupapa Māori. A major achievement and lasting legacy is UC Library's bicultural strategy Ngā Awa e Rua, the first version of which was written before the existence of UC's bicultural strategy.

Although Te Pā o Moki was closed under Alert Level 2, the Taumutu Executive and Marae Trustees agreed to open the marae to Nekenekeiterangi and his whānau, with Covid-19 restrictions.

Nekenekeiterangi was laid to rest at Orariki on Friday 4 September 2020. E te uri o Ngatoroirangi, e moe, takoto mai rā.

NGĀI TAHU TOURISM ACQUIRES THE STATION

8 September 2020

Ngāi Tahu Tourism has taken full ownership of The Station booking and information hub in central Queenstown as it looks to create a presence for its reopened tourism experiences, including Shotover Jet.

The Station, on the corner of Shotover and Camp streets in the town centre, has been a highly visible part of Queenstown's tourism scene for more than three decades. It provides information and booking services for many of the region's attractions and activities.

It is also a pivotal central base for shuttle services for the Shotover Jet, which has re-opened, and other Ngāi Tahu Tourism experiences throughout Whakatipu.

Ngāi Tahu Tourism National Sales Manager Steve Bruce says Ngāi Tahu Tourism has enjoyed partial ownership of The Station. The move to full ownership, with a newly re-signed lease, enables the company to optimise the visibility of its tourism experiences in a prominent, strategic location.

"The Station has a fantastic central Tāhuna Queenstown location, providing us a strategic opportunity to raise the visibility and presence for all our tourism experiences, including our world-famous Shotover Jet."

"The global pandemic and the resulting loss of international visitors has hit Queenstown and the surrounding area particularly hard. But we have already seen New Zealanders want to experience everything Queenstown has to offer."

"We have worked hard in recent months to reopen our Whakatipu experiences. This expansion of our stake in The Station will further support us in extending our manaaki (hospitality) to New Zealanders at this time. It also allows us to be ready to greet our international manuhiri once they are again able to travel here and give them great experiences in our outstanding part of the world.

TE MANA O TE TAIAO

Aotearoa New Zealand Biodiversity Strategy

The Department of Conservation (DOC) has recently released 'Te Mana o te Taio' – Aotearoa New Zealand Biodiversity Strategy (the Strategy).

As you may recall, Te Rūnanga o Ngāi Tahu (Te Rūnanga) provided its response to the discussion document for the Strategy in November 2019. In short, Te Rūnanga was critical of the lack of partnership by DOC in developing the Strategy and raised concerns that the Treaty principles were not given effect to, as per section 4 of the Conservation Act.

Our views on the recently released Strategy unfortunately remain the same. It does not give effect to the partnership.

Whilst the Strategy does take a positive step in seemingly supporting Treaty partnerships, mātauranga Māori and embedding te ao Māori in the biodiversity system, our overriding concern is that the Strategy sits within a conservation framework which does not allow for the meaningful exercise of rangatiratanga by Ngāi Tahu. Without DOC, and the Crown, taking substantive and meaningful steps to deliver on the partnership, those goals outlined to support the partnership will not be met.

Should you wish for further information on the Strategy and the Te Rūnanga view, please do not hesitate to contact Rakihia Tau on Rakihia.tau@ngaitahu.iwi.nz. Group Head of Strategic Relationships or Holly Brown of Strategy & Influence.
